Beyond School Borders - Embark on a Journey of Arts at Suntec Singapore

19 March 2004, Singapore - From tomorrow till 28 March, visitors coming to Suntec Singapore International Convention and Exhibition Centre will be able to enjoy some of the finest art works of local school students.

The visual art display this weekend at Level 2 walkway of Suntec Singapore is a prelude to a collection of outstanding students' art and design works that will be presented at ARTivities, an event that is taking place next weekend, by the Ministry of Education to showcase outstanding art and design works from local schools.

This is the first time that local school art and design works are being presented at an international convention and exhibition venue, a joint effort by Suntec Singapore and the Ministry of Education, to provide an opportunity for local students to exhibit their artistic flair and creativity to Singaporeans.

Said Warren Buckley, Chief Executive Officer of Suntec Singapore: " As a provider of meeting, convention and exhibition space, the venue is pleased to be able to offer a public platform for students to showcase their talents and creativity. Suntec Singapore is a strong corporate supporter of the development of the Arts community in Singapore and embraces the Government's efforts to establish Singapore as an international arts hub. Our participation in ARTivities as an event partner is a reinforcement of this commitment."

MEDIA RELEASE

Capturing students' passion for arts, visitors can look out for the works from 15-year old Lim Yan Yun of Nanyang Girls' High School, who learnt to colour and draw before learning to write. The public display features the Secondary Three student's art works from her primary school days to present, giving visitors a glimpse of her journey of arts pursuits.
